Fact Sheet of School of Management, Xiamen University 2018-2019

Business education in Xiamen University has a long history. As early as 1921, when the University was founded, the Business Division was established. Although the national university reorganization in 1953 did have an impact, such important subjects as accounting and some others remained within the university and developed rapidly after reform and opening. Over the last nine decades, SMXMU has become one of the most comprehensive and the most competitive business schools in China. MOE (Ministry of Education) ranked the school has China's #1 Accounting Program; #3 Finance Program; SMXMU known as “Wharton of China in finance, accounting, and banking,” and China’s “Top 3” for SMXMU's national key discipline of Business Administration. In 2006, BusinessWeek ranked SMXMU 5th of “China's Top Business Schools.” In 2013, the school passed the EQUIS accreditation. In 2014, Financial Times ranked open and customized EDP programs 46 and 53 globally. In the past 3 consecutive years, Manager rated SMXMU 1st in “China Management Programs' Highest Student Satisfaction.”

SMXMU offers programs in undergraduate and graduate business education, awarding bachelor, master and doctoral degrees in finance, accounting, business management, tourism and hotel management, technological economics and management, management science and engineering, marketing, plus a post-doctoral research program in business administration. Currently, SMXMU has 4668 on-campus students, including 1094 undergraduates, 3426 masters students (of whom 3003 are professional masters students), and 148 doctoral students.

For international and regional exchanges, SMXMU has developed close ties with world class universities in terms of student and faculty exchange, teaching and research collaboration, joint degree program, summer schools and oversea internship programs. Nowadays, SMXMU established international collaboration with over 65 universities in the world.

SMXMU was awarded AMBA and EQUIS accreditation and gained AACSB Business School/ Accounting Programme Eligibility.
